Class-Level Insights

Imagine you're in a PLC meeting. Everyone is sharing what their students struggled with this week. You're not guessing — you have a clear summary showing the class's biggest strengths and where most students need support. You even notice a subgroup pattern that helps you address equity right away.

Assignment-Level Insights

Picture wrapping up an assignment today and wondering, ‘What should I reteach tomorrow?’ Instead of sifting through every student’s work, you open Insights and immediately see that most struggled with supporting claims while others excelled.

Student-Level Insights

Now think about preparing for a parent-teacher conference. You want to celebrate progress but also share growth areas. Instead of piecing together notes, you open Insights and get a complete narrative in seconds.
